Translation Studies

Call for Papers & Editorial Policy

Submission Deadlines March 20 for the Spring issue June 20 for the Summer issue September 20 for the Autumn issue December 20 for the Winter issue

The Translation Studies welcomes contributions of original research papers, case studies and reviews on translation issues. We prefer unpublished contributions.

We will not publish translated articles, interviews, criticism, or translation didactics. That is, we do not intend to translate, edit, teach translation, criticise or evaluate translations. Instead, we want to do researches, write reviews and carry out surveys on all translation issues: cultural, historical, linguistic, literary, technological, etc.

By submitting a paper to the Translation Studies, the authors represent that their text and any illustrations thereto comply with national and international copyright laws. The authors release and hold the Translation Studies harmless from any claims or liabilities under such laws. Quotations from any article published herein are permitted as long as proper reference is clearly made to the Translation Studies as the original source.

Style

- Length: Normally between 3000 and 4,500 words.
- Style: APA
- Format: Microsoft Word is preferred. Graphics can be in TIFF, JPEG, GIF, Photoshop, or BMP.
